We jetted all the way to Nassau, Bahamas, loaded with terries, to photograph our new beach lovelies. At the Emerald Beach Hotel* we found a true tropical paradise, the perfect location for the wearing of our terries, the taking of our pictures, plus having our fun in the sun.

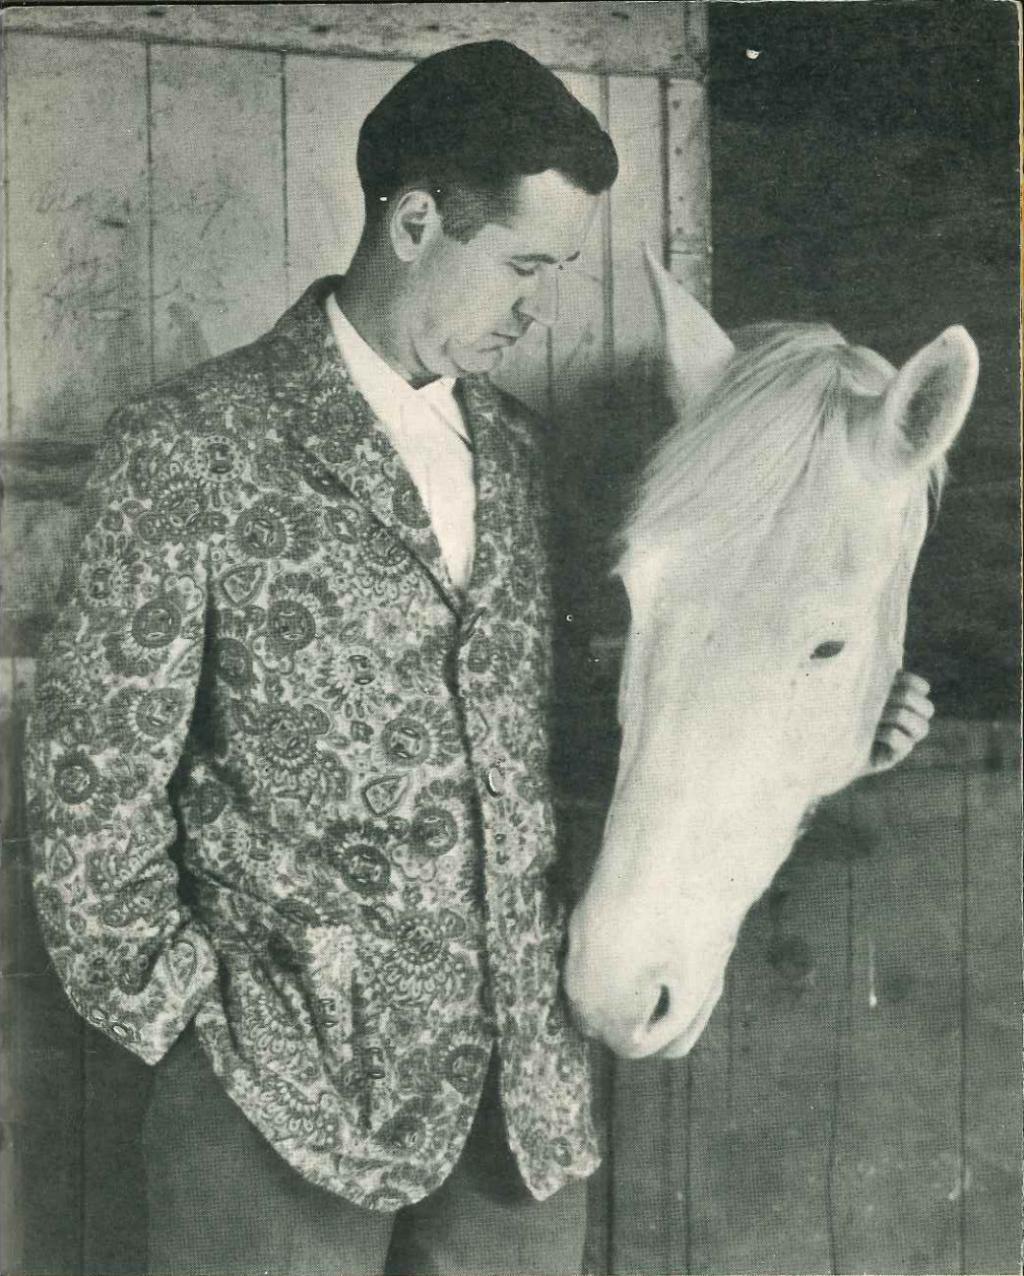

Above, you see our beautiful Jan all ready to go to work, riding on a rack of terries ready and waiting for the camera. Photographs by James McGorrian.

CARING FOR TERRY

When it's time to launder your terry fashions, just toss them into the tub or washing machine with your favorite soap or detergent. Drip-dried, terry comes out extra-soft and fluffy. If you use an automatic drier, do avoid extreme heat—it shrinks the cotton fibers. When dry, your terry styles are ready to put on—they never need an iron.

564 "PLAY BRIDGE" BY MORTON RUBINOW

Not terry, but terry-ific! Since bridge is our favorite pastime, we thought we'd pass this sensational new idea in bridge instruction on to you. Bridge via the Hi-fi—turn off the "Music to Dine By" and tune in on a bridge lesson. What more pleasant or more convenient way could you find to become an expert while you save the $200 private instruction fee? A complete 12 lesson bridge course is offered on two long-playing records recorded by RCA Victor for Contract Bridge Institute by Morton Rubinow.

Mr. Rubinow, professional teacher at the famous Card School in New York, is a Life Master who currently holds both the National Masters Team and Masters Pair Championship titles. He was an official member of the United States team to the 1960 World Bridge Olympics in Italy.

The beauty of the records is that the various divisions of the records are plainly marked so that the learner can take the course step by step, replaying as many times as he wishes until he has mastered the lesson. With the records comes a 72 page booklet with 81 practice hands, 184 quizzes and solutions, complete bidding summary, a table of opening leads, a glossary of bridge terms, and scoring instructions.

As Albert Morehead, bridge editor of the New York Times puts it: "I predict Rubinow will be to bridge what Berlitz is to languages." Tobias Stone says he challenges the average player to listen to the records and not improve his game, and Sam Stayman writes: "The process is painless, the results are miraculous. Rubinow's records have something to offer every player from beginner to expert." Also endorsed by Oswald Jacoby, Helen Sobel, B. Jay Becker, Alfred Sheinwold, John R. Crawford, Edgar Kaplan, and other leading bridge experts. Complete album containing two long-playing, high fidelity records and 72 page booklet for only $8.95.
